Better Future Highlight

Portfolio holding Pacific Edge has developed the Cxbladder suite of diagnostic tests which use biomarkers to detect and manage bladder cancers. The Cxbladder tests are non-invasive and may be used in conjunction with and, over time, to reduce the need for multiple invasive cystoscopy procedures, which are the current standard of care for patients with bladder cancer symptoms.

The Cxbladder tests are used regularly in Pacific Edge's home market of New Zealand and are increasingly being adopted in the US market where the Cxbladder Detect and Monitor tests are eligible for US Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement.

During June, Pacific Edge announced that Kaiser Permanente, the largest integrated health provider in the US, has given the green light to incorporate Cxbladder tests within Kaiser's Electronic Medical Records system. This is a key development and will facilitate the use of the test by Kaiser's urologists, which manage around 2% of the urology patients in the US.
