Overview

- Global markets performed strongly in February, driven by continuing positive sentiment around vaccine rollouts and the prospect of large stimulus in the US, with all major indices delivering positive returns. This was despite a selloff in the later part of the month on the back of rising bond yields.
- The Australian market followed a similar path, rallying early in the month before pulling back, with the ASX300 Accumulation Index finishing the month up 1.5%. Cyclical sectors such as Resources, Energy and Financials led the market higher, while defensive, interest rate sensitive sectors lagged.
- The Trust delivered a return of +5.1%, outperforming the market by 3.6% after fees, as ongoing strong domestic economic data and positive results during the reporting season, supported the outlook for many of our good value cyclical holdings, which are leveraged to an improvement in the broader economy.
- Since the market's low in March, the Trust has performed well, returning +63.2% and outperforming the market by 12.0% after fees. This performance highlights the Trust's leverage to the post-COVID economic recovery. Historically, value style investing has delivered significant outperformance during economic recoveries.

Trust Review

Increasing inflation expectations and a rise in bond yields have had a positive effect on portfolio performance. This is a thesis we have been discussing in recent months with our view being that the large stimulus being delivered to economies from both the central banks and governments will flow through into inflation expectations. As mentioned, the Trust delivered a return of +5.1%, outperforming the market by 3.6% after fees.

The February reporting season was the main highlight of the month, with companies reporting their results for the half-year to December. In line with the improving economic backdrop, the majority of results were reasonably positive. Sectors such as retail, which have been clear beneficiaries of COVID-related stimulus, delivered very strong results. Resources stocks also delivered bumper results, driven by high commodity prices. Financials were also strong, with the CBA result and Q1 trading updates from the other banks highlighting that credit quality remains very good. While many companies were adversely impacted by COVID, the trends were clearly improving.

Stocks which contributed positively over the month again included our large overweight positions in ANZ and Westpac. Resource holdings performed well, with BHP (+12.8%) and Fortescue Metals (+10.6%) rising on stronger commodity prices. We view the outlook for the resources sector positively and expect there is more upside still to come.

Other holdings which performed well included NewsCorp (+18.3%), which rallied after delivering a very strong result, underpinned by its digital news media and online real estate platforms. We believe that there is significant unrecognised value in the assets of NewsCorp which could be realised at some point. Along this line, Tabcorp (+13.4%) also rallied after receiving an offer to acquire its wagering business. While this division has struggled in recent times, it is a very attractive asset in a sector undergoing consolidation. We have long believed that a separation of Tabcorp's businesses would realise value by allowing a significant re-rating of the lotteries business, which has very stable earnings underpinned by long-term licences.

Trust Activity

During the month, we rotated some of our overweight in ANZ into NAB. We also added packaging company Orora to the portfolio. Orora has a very solid business as the leading glass and can producer in Australia as well as a US operation whose performance is improving. The company has a very strong balance sheet and may well become a break-up target at some point.

At month end, stock numbers were 20 and cash was 5.1%.

Outlook

The start of 2021 may well mark a significant turning point for the global economy and markets, with the prospects of a near-term roll-out of an effective COVID vaccine underpinning the reopening of economies and a return to global growth. Importantly also, the change of leadership in the US should usher in a period of stability in terms of domestic and international policy and, hopefully, a generally more harmonious backdrop. The election result of a Biden presidency and Democratic Senate means there is likely to be increased fiscal stimulus, which should be positive for economic growth, corporate earnings and markets overall.

Domestically, key indicators around employment, loan deferrals and the property market are all surprising to the upside. Finally, the economy is underpinned by historically low interest rates and meaningful fiscal stimulus. If this improvement continues, then corporate earnings and dividends are likely to rebound strongly over the coming year.

The Trust is positioned to benefit from an ongoing economic improvement and our focus remains on investing in quality companies with proven business models and strong balance sheets, which are offering attractive valuations and have the ability to deliver high levels of franked dividend income to investors.
